SECRETARY HUGHES GIVES OUT AGENDA FOR WASHINGTON ARMS CONFERENCE

Limitation of Navies First on Program—China To Come In For Much Discussion—No Powers Have Yet Offered Objections.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The agenda which the United States has proposed to the other powers for the November armament conference having been cabled from Tokio in an inaccurate form, the state department today made public the official text of the proposals which the United States has made.

Secretary of State Hughes, issued the following statement:

"Inasmuch as the published statement of the tentative suggestions of the agenda for the conference on the limitation of armament is inaccurate in some particulars a corrected statement is appended:

"Limitation of Armament: 1.—Limitation of naval armament, under which shall be discussed:

"(A) Basis of limitation.

"(B) Extent.

"(C) Fulfillment.

"2.—Rules for control of new agencies of warfare.

"3.—Limitation of land armament.

"Pacific and far eastern question:

"1.—Questions relating to China.

"First—Principles to be applied.

"Second—Application.

"Subjects:

"(A) Territorial integrity.

"(B) Administrative integrity.

"(C) Open door—equality of commercial and industrial opportunity.

"(D) Concessions, monopolies or preferential privileges.

"(E) Development of railways, including plans relating to Chinese eastern railway.

"(F) Preferential railroad rates.

"(G) Status of existing commitments.

"2.—Siberia.

"(Similjir headings).

"3.—Mandated islands.

"(Unless questions earlier settled).

"Under the heading of 'Status of existing commitments' it is expected that opportunity will be afforded to consider and reach an understanding with respect to unsettled questions involving the nature and scope of commitment under which claims of rights may hereafter be asserted."

Washington, Sept. 21.—Not one dissenting voice has been raised by the powers invited to attend the forthcoming November armament conference against the agenda which the United States has proposed here, it was officially declared at the state department today.

On the contrary, it was stated, the subjects proposed by the United States have met with unanimous approval on the part of the powers addressed, so far as this government has been officially advised.

State department officials declared themselves at a loss today to account for the pessimistic tone of press dispatches from London reflecting the British attitude over the prospects for the November conference.

Up to date neither Great Britain, Japan, Italy, France or China has seen fit to interpose any suggestions to the American proposals, and on the contrary have indicated their approval.

TOWNSEND'S CAR BROKE HYDRANT

This afternoon about 1 o'clock H. E. Townsend, who resides in the Kennedy residence at No. 10 East Chestnut street, left his big Packard touring car standing on the East Chestnut street hill in front of his home. While Mr. Townsend was in the house the car suddenly started and ran away down the hill, across Broadway, and crashed into the fire hydrant at the corner of Broadway and West Chestnut street, snapping the hydrant off at the base. The street was soon flooded with the water from the broken hydrant. The Packard was not badly damaged but had to be pulled off the broken hydrant on which it rested. No one was struck by the runaway car, and there was no one in the car at the time.

Locating The Pain.

Dr. Hubbell is a well known Delaware county physician who is familiarly known throughout the county as "Doc." A tribute to the well known physician is published in the Stamford Mirror Recorder, as follows: On the road to East Meredith lives a worthy descendant of an old family. Successive attacks of indigestion while taking much of the way out of life, have failed to dissipate his sincere liking for "Doc," which he expressed recently as follows: "You know Doc Hubbell? Good-a man! We all time sick in da del. Gotta be men. Doc he come anna time. Nice-a fine man. Other docs say 'no come. No good for dam'."

Storm Warning Issued.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Sept. 21.—The weather bureau today ordered storm warning posted on the great lakes, around extreme western Superior, and on the Atlantic coast at and south of Delaware breakwater.

TO KILL CALVES ON ANN STREET

Harris Mones Granted Permission by Health Board to Maintain a Slaughter House on That Street—Infantile Paralysis Case Improving.

Harris Mones of 28 East Union street, who had filed a petition for a permit to conduct a slaughter house at No. 20 Ann street, appeared before the board of health at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, asking that his petition be granted.

Mr. Mones said that he purchased a number of calves last week which he kept in his building on Ann street, but he desired permission to slaughter them as he did not like to keep them alive for several days. Mr. Mones was granted permission provided he make several changes to his building on Ann street, to which he agreed. The board believed that several other butchers in that vicinity had been granted permission to slaughter. Mr. Mones was entitled to the same consideration.

Mayor Canfield presided at the meeting with Dr. Huhne, Dr. Gage, Day, Mrs. Michael and Mr. Kaufman present. The reports of the officers were read and filed. They will be found elsewhere in The Freeman.

It was reported to the board that the case of infantile paralysis in the Sottile family on North street was slowly improving. The board is still taking every precaution to avoid the spread of the disease and maintains a guard on the premises, the guards working in eight hour shifts. The patient is an eight months old baby. When first afflicted it was unable to move its arms or legs.

No new cases of the disease have been reported in Kingston.

The board discussed several routine matters and then adjourned.

NEW FERRY AND N. Y. C. SCHEDULE

The new time table of the Rhinebeck & Kingston Ferry to take effect on Sunday, September 25th is shown in our advertising columns today. Under this schedule the first trip from Kingston will be made at 7 a. m. and from Rhinecliff at 7:20 a. m. on week days, the same as has been in effect this summer. On Sundays only, the first trip from Kingston will be at 7:40 a. m. and from Rhinecliff at 8:00 a. m. During the day trips will be made at the usual forty minute interval. The last trip at night will leave Kingston at 10:20 p. m., and Rhinecliff at 10:40 p. m.

On the same date a new schedule will go into effect on the New York Central Railroad. Due to the readjustment of trains and the discontinuance of daylight saving time, it will be necessary, in connecting with trains, to use in almost every instance, an earlier ferry than has been used during the summer. Passengers desiring to connect with these trains should carefully compare the ferry time table with the new railroad time table, allowing fifteen minutes for time of the ferry in crossing, in order to select the ferry trip necessary to make proper connection.

THANKS OF "THE DUG OUT"

More Appreciation For Knauth Home Voiced By Mrs. McVickar.

That the Knauth home on Albany avenue which was conducted during the summer for sick soldiers was appreciated is shown by a letter received by Mayor Palmer Canfield from Mrs. Edward McVickar, chairman of the executive committee of "The Dug Out," a club house and work shop for ex-service men in Washington, D. C. "The Dug Out," New York city, "The Dug Out" was opened by the National League for Women's Service last November to provide suitable well equipped work shops where disabled ex-service men might continue the occupational therapy work which they had been taught while patients in the army hospitals. There is a sales room adjoining where articles made in the shop are sold. Since the opening over $20,000 worth of articles have been made in the shop and sold, the proceeds after the cost of the raw material is turned over to the men who made the articles.

It was from among the men at "The Dug Out" that selections were made for the Knauth home this summer and the letter received by Mayor Canfield shows that the work of the local people this summer was appreciated by the men and also those in charge of "The Dug Out."

The letter signed by the chairman of the Executive Committee follows:

September 17, 1921.

Palmer Canfield, Esq., Kingston, N. Y.

My dear Mayor Canfield:

I feel that I must write and tell you how greatly we men at "The Dug Out" are in your debt for the splendid opportunity which was given them this summer through the Soldiers' Convalescent Home at Kingston.

Every man who went there returned greatly benefited in health and morale and most enthusiastic in praise of all that was done for them both by the committee in charge of the house and by the people of Kingston.

The committee of "The Dug Out" wish you to know how much it has meant to them to have a share in the hospitality of the Kingston house and how very deeply grateful we all are.

Sincerely,

MRS. EDWARD McVICKAR, Chairman.

HAVRE WARMLY GREETED PERSHING

Most of Population Turns Out to Welcome Him as He Spends Few Hours There on Way to Paris—Will Pick Unknown Soldier for Honors.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Havre, France, Sept. 21.—Greeted by picked American troops, French officials and masses of cheering, flag-waving civilians, General John J. Pershing arrived here today. General Pershing landed from the French liner Paris at 10:45 o'clock and after two hours packed with ceremonies departed for Paris.

General Pershing was in fine health and spirits. He said he had had a fine voyage.

There was a tremendous din when the liner Paris conveyed by French men of war entered the harbor. All the steamships in port blew shrieking blasts from their sirens.

General Pershing was deeply impressed by the warmth of the greeting. He gazed with critical eye at the American guard of honor—selected from the best American troops in France. Then he smiled and waved to the civilians who were cheering themselves hoarse. It seemed that the whole city had turned out to honor the famous American veteran.

It was General Pershing's first visit to France since the war ended. He is on a mission from the American government to honor France's "unknown warrior" who lies buried in the Arc de Triomphe.

General Pershing will select the body of the "unknown American soldier" that will be buried with national honors in Arlington Cemetery, typifying the country's gratitude to the humble men of the ranks in the world war.

Paris, Sept. 21.—During his stay in Paris General Pershing will occupy the suite at the Crillon Hotel formerly used by President Wilson and Premier Lloyd-George.

HUGUENOT GRANGE ANNUAL EXHIBIT

The annual exhibit and sale of Huguenot Grange will be held Friday, September 23, at the Grange Hall at New Paltz.

Huguenot Grange, with a membership of 270 members, is the largest and one of the most active granges in the county.

For a number of years the grange has held exhibits and sales, to raise money to pay off the grange debt. Each year, with increased membership, they have increased the display of farm produce, until the present time they are able to present a display of the finest as well as the largest quantity of fruit, vegetables and cooked articles as any grange in the state.

The food sale, consisting of home made bread, cakes, pies, etc., will be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the sale of fruit and vegetables at 7 o'clock, standard time.

RAIN HELPS CORN AND POTATOES

The weather the past week was generally warm and favorable for all outdoor work until near the end, when general rains occurred over nearly all parts of the state, according to the summary of weather and crop conditions for the week ending September 20, sent out from the Ithaca office of the weather bureau. The rains were very beneficial to late corn and potatoes and improved pastures to a marked degree. Silo filling is about completed in most sections, potato digging is well under way; there appears to be less blight than usual.

Fall seeding is progressing with the soil in good condition. The buckwheat harvest is under way; fair yields are reported. Apples, grapes, quinces and plums are being marketed. Light frosts were reported from some points in the northern part of the state.

Bad Money in Newburgh.

Two men, thought to be Poles, are being sought for by the Newburgh police for passing ingeniously counterfeited $10 bills which are being circulated in that city. The discovery of seven counterfeiters has been made, and it is feared that more bad bills may be in circulation. The close resemblance between the design of the two and ten dollar notes of the Federal Reserve Bank is the basis for the counterfeit. Copies of two dollar bills are changed to ten dollar markings and the face of the note is also altered wherever the word "two" appears.

Special Supervisors' Meeting.

There will be a special meeting of the board of supervisors at the rooms in the court house on Tuesday evening, September 27, for the purpose of taking action on final contracts connected with the hospital built in connection with the county poor house at New Paltz, to consider matters pertaining to county highways, also to transact such other business which may be brought up before the meeting.

To Build New Sanatorium.

Poughkeepsie is to have a new $15,000 house of convalescence to be built by the Corporation on a 10-acre plot of land at 13 South Bridge street.

HOT G. O. P. FIGHT AT SYRACUSE

Miller Determined to Name Andrews for Appeals Bench—Two Other Candidates—Labor and Women Claim Consideration of Platform Makers.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Republicans from all over the state are wending their way to Syracuse today. They have chosen for their meeting place tomorrow the arena where, from present indications, will be staged a bitter political fight over the naming of a party candidate for the court of appeals.

Governor Miller plans to leave here today for the arena. While he will not make an open fight, his influence will guide the battle for Judge William S. Andrews of Syracuse, named to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Emory A. Chase. Judge Andrews wants to continue on the bench of the state's highest court. That two others of the seven judges are Syracuseans has not lessened his ambition. Neither has it deterred Governor Miller and some of the up-state leaders from determining, if possible to secure Judge Andrews' nomination.

There will be opposition to their plans. Most of the counties in and near by the third judicial district will support Supreme Court Justice Aaron V. S. Cochrane. Justice Russell Benedict of Brooklyn promises to make a three cornered fight of the nominating party.

Nomination of an appeals court candidate, however, is not the only convention rift. Labor will make a determined stand to have incorporated in the platform to be adopted, planks calling for the establishment of a state insurance fund, the eight hour day and minimum wage. Labor delegates will ask the convention to pledge opposition to any law which seeks compulsory arbitration. They will ask the Republican conference to oppose the issuance of court injunctions against wage earners while laboring disputes are in progress.

It was reported doubtful here today if Secretary of State Hughes will address the gathering. Representative Simpson B. Pess of Ohio is expected to represent the national administration.

Women delegates plan to be as active as the men. Mass meetings for women are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon and evening. Mrs. Miller, wife of the governor, will give a reception to the women. Mrs. Lillian S. Peichert, Republican woman's chairman for New Jersey, will address them. The women will make an intensive drive on the convention for greater political recognition, and it is reported they will get it.

The convention opens at noon tomorrow.

Court Adjourns Until Monday

Lack of Business—Three Weeks' Work for Grand Jury—Jury Finds No Cause for Wache's Damage Action.

County court convened this morning at 10 o'clock and as there was no business, an adjournment was taken until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members of the jury were excused until Monday afternoon, November 14, when the criminal calendar will be taken up.

The only case on the day calendar for today was the action brought by Scott VanDeMark against George W. Johnson. There was no appearance on the part of defendant, Johnson, and the complaint was dismissed on motion of Frank W. Brooks, who appeared for VanDeMark.

The grand jury it is expected will not complete its work for at least three weeks, as there is considerable work to be taken up.

No Damages for Wache.

The jury sitting in the case of Louis Wache against Fred G. Leisinger, an action brought to recover $2500 in damages sustained to the plaintiff's motorcycle in a collision with defendant's automobile truck at Riffon on July 1, 1920, returned a verdict Tuesday afternoon of no cause of action. N. H. Pescodden appeared for plaintiff and John T. Canfield for defendant. At the close of the case, county court took a recess until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Tagging All The Buses.

The tanks sent back into the lead when they returned from the highway, they found a trap set by the highway patrol. The highway patrol, who had been waiting for the tanks, had set a trap for them. The tanks were caught in the trap and were taken to the highway patrol station.

TWELVE HUNDRED DIE IN EXPLOSION AT GREAT DYE PLANT IN GERMANY

Aniline Works at Ludwigshafen Is Scene of Blast Resembling Earthquake Which Causes District to Look Like Battlefield and Cuts Communications.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—Twelve hundred persons are reported to have been killed in a terrific explosion in the Baden aniline works at Ludwigshafen today.

The first report, received by the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung estimated the casualties at 700, but subsequent dispatches magnified the extent of the disaster and the appalling loss of life.

(Ludwigshafen is in the Bavarian Palatinate on the Rhine and is the seat of immense dye works.)

It was the worst explosion of the kind that ever took place in Germany.

The scene of the blast and adjacent territory was described as a veritable battlefield, covered with wreckage and mangled bodies.

The explosion had the force of an earthquake, destroying houses, tearing down telephone and telegraph wires and smashing everything in its path. The blast played many freakish tricks. In some places houses were left standing in the midst of the destruction with only windows broken and tables overturned.

Lower Bank Rates Predicted

Washington, Sept. 21.—Lower bank rates at an early date were predicted today at the close of the quarterly session of the advisory council of the Federal Reserve Board. New York and Boston Federal Reserve Banks, both of which have a flat discount rate of five and one half percent, will be the first to make re-discount rates cuts.

Drops in reserve bank re-discount rates will exert a healthy influence immediately upon credit. Strength of the federal reserve system, and its ability to meet future emergencies is clearly indicated by the almost unprecedented reserve ratios, registered for some of the big districts of the east and middle west.

Your Heating Engineer— you used to call him Steamfitter

"During the first winter nearly one-half of their number died from exposure."

—ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA

JUST three hundred years ago they landed on Plymouth Rock. They were a courageous company—as sturdy and stout as the best of us.

But nearly half of them died from exposure.

The land to which they came was the same land in which we live; the winter was no more severe than our winters now.

But nearly half of them died from exposure.

Almost no one in America dies from exposure today. And why? Because of the service of a group of quiet, unassuming men. Working without special notice or praise, the men whom you call Steamfitters and Plumbers have made the newest nation the healthiest and best-warmed nation in the world.

They have done a wonderful work for America; and yet their work is hardly more than begun. Statisticians say that 17½ million homes in America still have no heat except the heat of old-fashioned stoves.

ARCOLA— the Heating Engineer's wonderful new gift to the small home

FOR years every Heating Engineer has longed for a hot-water heating outfit that would warm the small home as perfectly as the larger heating plants of the AMERICAN RADIATOR COMPANY warm mansions, cathedrals and even the White House itself.

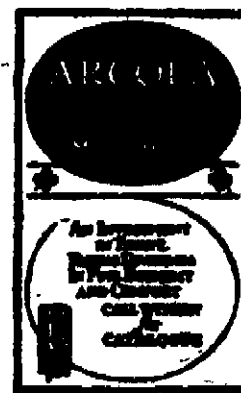

ARCOLA—a wonderful new invention developed after years of experiment—is the answer to that hope.

ARCOLA is unlike any heating equipment you have ever seen. It is radiator and boiler and hot-water heater combined to burn any kind of fuel. Set in the living-room, dining-room or kitchen, it radiates healthful warmth to every corner. American Radiators, connected with it by small pipes carry its warmth to every room upstairs and down. The kitchen tank, too, can draw on its deep firepot, providing an abundance of hot water for washing and bathing.

See ARCOLA today in the store of any Heating Engineer displaying the red and yellow card at the right.

ARCOLA is not only a great invention for the small home; it is a gift to the small home in a very real sense.

For, in the fuel it saves, ARCOLA is guaranteed to pay for itself.

If every man who can install a heating plant should work every day, it would take a generation to give modern healthful heat to those 17½ million homes.

An almost overwhelming task! But think of the overwhelming economy! Every IDEAL TYPE A HEAT MACHINE substituted for a wasteful furnace or boiler means that one family's fuel bill is reduced one-third.

Every ARCOLA, supplanting a furnace or old-fashioned stoves, slashes the fuel bill of another home.

Of all the services rendered to the modern home there is none which pays for itself more quickly or more surely than the service of the Steamfitter and Plumber.

Call your Steamfitter or your Plumber in now and have him go over your house and report; his counsel may save you money. Make it a point to consult him twice a year as you do your Doctor or your Dentist. And do not be surprised if the old name over his store has been taken down and a new one hangs in its place.

For the men whose science and skill have robbed winter of its terrors and removed the breeding-grounds of disease, have outgrown the names by which you have been accustomed to call them. Their work has become a profession: the Steamfitter and Plumber of yesterday are today the Heating and Sanitary Engineers.

The President at a recent gathering gave out several Cabinet secrets, saying that Secretary of War Weeks was addressed as "Mars," the God of War. Later it was learned other members of his official family had been given nicknames. The above photo shows what Secretary Weeks would look like if in the character of Mars. "Mars" was the God of War, who gloried in strife for its own sake. Mars is represented as a man of youthful appearance, his tall, muscular form combining great strength, with wonderful agility. In his right hand he bears a sword or a mighty lance, while on his left arm he carries his round shield.

FROCKS FOR THE GIRL AT SCHOOL

Uniforms and Plain Serge Dresses Play Important Part in the Outfit.

THREE-PIECE SUIT FAVORITE

Garment Regarded as Most Useful to Any Young Woman Sojourning Away From Home or for Traveling.

It is the schoolgirl who is being catered to just now in fashions, observes an authority on what women should wear. College girls are as interested in French models as are their mothers and their older sisters, but their departure for school takes place before there has been any considerable showing of French clothes in this country and before models have been copied to any great extent, so that special clothes have to be prepared to meet their requirements.

Uniforms and plain serge frocks play a very large part in the outfit of the younger schoolgirl, but the college girl enjoys more latitude in the selection of her outfit. While her costumes should not be elaborate, they may have a little more importance than those of the girl at boarding school.

It would save a great deal of trouble and much readjustment after the arrival at school if food parents would realize that simplicity is a matter of first consideration in outfitting a schoolgirl.

The three-piece suit is most useful to any young woman sojourning away from home or for traveling. This autumn there will be much to choose from in suits, and the practical will be embodied in all of them, owing to the influence of the plain gray which French women adopted so enthusiastically earlier in the season.

Adhering to gray and leaving all other colors out of consideration gives us an astonishing variety. There are the deep Oxford mixtures, so smart and so practical, and the very pale grays for more dress-up occasions—if a suit ever can be considered a dress-up costume.

Simplicity of outline marks all of the new suits. A French model of very dark gray cloth shows the same material tucked and inserted in bands. It incorporates several ideas in one model. The outline of the suit remains plain, and by omitting the tucked portions and the scalloped bottom a smart suit having a box coat with raglan sleeves and high collar remains.

New Blouses Have Shorter Lines. As for blouses to accompany the suit, it would be well to include one or two of the new costume blouses of crepe de chine or dull crepe satin. Beware of those showing too much elaboration.

In their eagerness to meet a sudden demand for blouses created by the rejuvenation of the tailored suit designers have gone far in an en-

Desires to offer new ideas. This is a natural thing to have done, for there are many tastes to be catered to.

The tendency in all blouses is toward shorter lines. The over-blouse, in many instances, ends at the waist-line at the side and back and slopes slightly below it in the front. Even as many of them, while finished to be worn outside the skirt, end at the normal waistline.

It is not unusual now to have a blouse made from the material of the suit itself. This is a revival of an old-time fashion and an extremely practical one.

Of considerable importance in the college girl's outfit is a topcoat, and there is no reason why this should not be one of the smartest costumes for college girls. The plain ones which were acknowledged by everyone who studied the French scene to be among the smartest things were there now may be procured in this country.

Loose Topcoats of Plaid weathers. Those with long cape backs or cut in scarf effect, while attractive, are each day, rain or shine, so a raincoat is essential.

If a day be unattractive women should not fall in line with it by appearing in old clothes which they would not wear in the bright sunshine.

In this country we walk so little in the rain that there has not been the demand for good-looking raincoats that there is in England, where women consider a smart rain costume of real importance.

But a growing interest in rainy-day coats is constantly developing here. Some of our most exclusive American firms brought over smart models last year in rubberized plaid cloth with small hats to match. They were so expensive, however, that they were practically prohibitive for the woman of average income. Now copies of some of the best models from London and Paris may be had at reasonable prices. Among them are cages suitable for wearing over a suit or heavy coat in the autumn and winter.

Some of the new models in long coats which French designers have been working on so animatedly of late are of rain-proof tweeds and gabardines, although these are not quite as unusual and smart as the silk rain-proof plaids in large, showy patterns on the order of the coats worn at the French races.

There are a number of smart coats of the deep-pleated sort with chevron collars that start at a neckline cut out far onto the shoulders.

Peter Pan Collars Add Touch of Youth. A simple evening dress of the soft, fuller skirted sort finds its logical place in the young girl's wardrobe, and an evening frock of more tailored outline which is composed entirely of ribbons, as well as a simple dinner dress with somewhat high neck and short sleeves, and the occasional dress blue serge frock, the latter having a collar which is a revival of an old-time favorite—the Peter Pan collar.

Several collars of this type have been noted on recent models. They may be of the material from which the frock is made or composed of bands of real lace, often on a dark blue or black dress they are of white silk. They give a girlish touch and serve to vary the monotony of a neckline which we have had so some time.

There is a new shade of stockings that will interest many a schoolgirl. It is a very dark gray, almost black, and in certain light shows tints of blue.

What sort of handbag shall be chosen for the schoolgirl is another question that arises, and here there is much from which to select. Thin ones will be very much liked, but better than the thin silk ones are those of leather, having the flatness so much desired, but that are sufficiently commodious to hold as much as the old-time shopping bag. They are elaborated with handsome monograms, which make them smart enough to please the most exacting.

A Costly Coat.

In his book on helmets and body armor in modern warfare, Dr. Bashford Dean says: "A shirt of mail in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art contains a quarter of a million handmade and tempered rings, each carefully formed and each separately riveted. If you estimate that a skillful armorer might make and weave together two hundred and fifty of these links a day, you can see that this mail would have cost its maker, working every day, almost three years' work—a low estimate for making this particular mail. If you allow the maker six dollars a day for a thousand days, such a shirt would therefore have cost its purchaser in round figures, at modern prices, six thousand dollars."

Farming in Alaska.

In the Tanana valley, the chief farming district of Alaska, the average annual rainfall is only about 12 inches, which would ordinarily make dry-farming methods appropriate, but the first few crops raised after a tract has been cleared in this region get plenty of moisture from the melting of subterranean ice. In the course of a few years, however, the ice recedes to a depth of six or seven or more feet, and no longer supplies moisture to the crops. It is then necessary to use machinery which will not only pack the soil a few inches below the surface and thus hinder evaporation, but also maintain a surface layer of loose soil, which furthers checks evaporation.

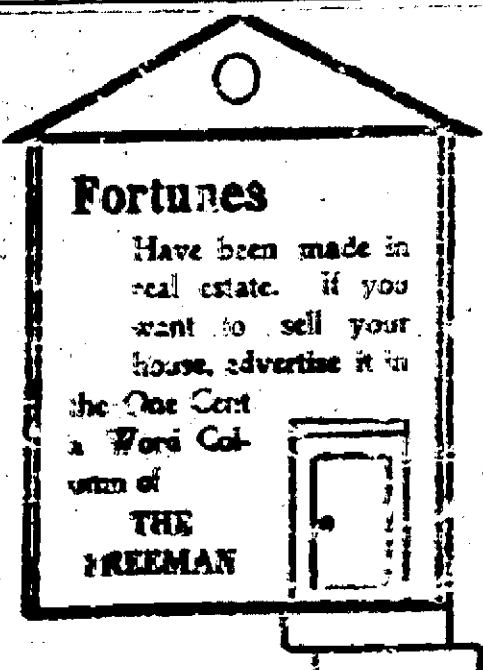

David Lloyd George, accompanied by his secretaries and his son, recently enjoyed a day's fishing in the Kerry river among the mountains above Gallicloch. It was a success and netted him a fine catch. The photo shows the English premier, with his first victim, a one and a half pound trout.

Name of Labrador.

It is believed that Labrador was named because Portuguese explorers thought the natives would make good laborers, or because of the labor required to make a living there. The name is connected with the old Spanish name for labor. The Labrador coast was discovered in the 15th century by Leif, the Norseman, but no explorations were made. It was discovered in 1497 by John Cabot. Explorations and settlements were made and the peninsula was named.

England's Jealousy Aroused.

It was not until the close of the 15th century that England began to take an active interest in the new world that had been found beyond the Atlantic. Spain led the way, for her sailors, under the Italian Columbus, had discovered the continent, but England was unwilling that Spain should reap all the glory and all the profit; and in 1482 King Henry VII. fired out an expedition for exploration beyond the sea.

"AMBASSADOR" CHAPLIN.

Incidents of the tumultuous reception of "Charlie" Chaplin at Southampton include—"The Mayor trying to make a speech which was constantly drowned with applause, the windows of the automobile smashed, women breaking through the flying wedge of police to hug and kiss the hero, a frenzied rush for the flowers he threw." All of which tempted the New York World to say, "We are rather used to Charlie Chaplin in this country. We know he is a genius of pantomime, but he lives in Los Angeles, with all the other movie stars, and since his divorce case reads like the rest of them we seldom give him serious thought. Abroad he is the king of mirth, exalted above his deserts no doubt. Ambassador Harvey is in England also, somewhere in the background, but for the present Charlie is our ambassador whether we like it or not."

The World seems to overlook what is perhaps the chief explanation of the great fuss made over Charlie at Southampton. Perhaps it was less because he is a "king of mirth" than because he is an Englishman, the movie fans turning out to do honor to a famous countryman of theirs. Charlie couldn't be "our Ambassador" even unofficially, a fact which British movie fans would no doubt like to have more generally known than it seems to be.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH.

It is stated that Senator Borah lost his chance of appointment as one of the American commissioners at the conference on armaments by standing for actual disarmament. However that may be, the senator appears to have the courage of his convictions in this matter. In a recent speech he declared that if he were a commissioner he would demand the immediate reduction of the fleets of the great powers through the sinking of battleships in concert. Apparently he would have each of the six nations meeting at Washington, or all those with big navies sink one battleship every day for about a month including all the most modern and powerful ones. No doubt such a course would put an end to big navies for a long time to come, but even if the governments and the majority of the people agreed to it, which is utterly improbable, the militarists in the United States as well as in England and Japan would throw fits.

Already there have been signs of much disturbance of mind, including excited announcements that "disarmament" is a misnomer, that nothing more than an agreement to "limit" armaments has ever been thought of and it has been intimated that even this is only a concession to the grumbling taxpayers. Such, in general, are the explanations of the New York Tribune, the Boston Transcript and the New York Herald, the last named saying as to the real purpose of the November conference: "It is not disarmament, but continued armament, that is under discussion; limitation of armament, if possible, by common consent, but limitation of armament for economic reasons, for the reduction of national burdens that are becoming unbearable, not because any really seeing eyes in this republic have been blinded by the splendor of an iridescent arch of vapor that is always as far away as ever, no matter with what quickened step you chase it."

In other words, only a slowing-up in competitive armament is desired or will be tolerated, and this not because any sane person is impressed by the visions of the idealists but because it is wise to call a halt, at least temporarily, for economic reasons. Some of these explanations, favoring against the false hopes raised by sentimentalists, even convey the impression that if the present competitive armament were not so expensive as to cause public criticism of the government and threaten embarrassing developments there would be no chance whatever in the present policy and an expensive congress of six nations would witness nothing more than academic discussion, the proposed reduction being wholly on account of costs and not because continued competitive armament is likely to precipitate war. Such explanations seem hardly necessary.

Intelligent observers, knowing by experience the difference between promise and performance, are not expecting a great deal. These will find cause for congratulation even if only slight limitation in competitive armaments should be agreed on and put into practice.

Can You Answer These Questions?

2. Is there such a thing as a sea serpent?
3. How can I fight the blight that comes on my rose bushes?

Answers To Previous Questions

1. How do swallows propagate? They lay eggs about the size of small peas, with very soft shells, and held together by mucous, under stones, or sometimes decaying leaves. The young have the rudiments of a shell when they hatch, with the beginnings of the spiral turn. This is added to with growth, at the rim of the shell.

2. I want to know if there are as many species of birds as of fishes, and the average life of both species, and what species live longest?

About a thousand more species of fishes have been listed than of birds. Impossible to guess the "average life" of any one species, let alone thousands. Eagles are thought to be long lived, if not molested. A little information on individual birds is being gathered by tagging with numbered aluminum legbands, and a few experiments have been tried by placing metal buttons through fins of fishes. Not enough data is yet available to make generalizations on any one species. Accident plays too much in the lives of wild creatures for the history of any one to be typical of its kind.

3. Is honeysuckle a good plant for city back yards?

Excellent for any kind of yard. It does well even in poor soil, and has few insect enemies. It is cheap to buy, and once well established, will give any number of young plants simply by layering, so that in a few years a fence may be covered at little expense. The variety L. Japonica Halliana is evergreen.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story
 Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Jim spent Sunday travelling, and arrived at his old lodging house early in the evening. He looked through the Sunday papers and, willing to begin low, managed to secure a job as office boy.

He started in Monday morning, after purchasing a new suit, new shoes and new hat, bewildering the young stenographer by his radiant appearance. "You are surely not the office boy! Why, you—you look like one of the Advisory Board."

Jim laughed. "I want to learn the business from the bottom up."

"They'll be suspicious of you—you look too grand."

"Then let me get to work at once. Shall I sweep the floor?"

"No indeed. But you might put a fresh bottle of water in the tank, run down to the post office for the mail. The rest of the time you'll have to spend answering questions to clients."

"How will I know what to answer?"

"Mr. Sedgwick will explain everything."

Later, Mr. Sedgwick, the owner, did explain, and Jim found that his work was mainly telling people to wait until Mr. Sedgwick was at liberty to see them, signalling the boss, and ushering the visitor in according to return orders. During the day he had plenty of leisure time to observe Lois Bennett who attracted him greatly. He liked her appearance and manner.

In the afternoon, when the rush of her work was over she chatted with him pleasantly. "You certainly won't be an office boy long. Do you know anything about stenography?"

"Nothing. But I'd like to learn."

"Oh, if you want to learn shorthand, you'll have to put in hours of study and practice. But I'll explain the typewriter, and you can spend your time practicing on it. Mr. Sedgwick likes to see his office force busy."

"That will please me too."

"Did you ever operate a switchboard?" she asked later. "I might get you a job for a few days the latter part of the week. Sedgwick's going to her sister's wedding in New York."

"That will be great, if you'll explain how I'm to do it."

"I'll introduce you to her, and she'll explain about the signals and switches."

With Lois's assistance and encouragement, Jim realized that many avenues of employment were opening up to him. He was exclaiming with enthusiasm over his prospects when the door opened and a messenger young man blew in.

"Hello, Jim! Where's the package?"

Lois smiled and motioned toward the private office. The youth tossed his cigarette in the basket and scowled through the door, not without winking at Jim.

"What did you let him do that for?" asked Jim.

"He's Mr. Sedgwick's son. There are lots of things a girl must stand to keep her job. In some cases, burning!"

Jim looked startled and seized the

It seems that the phrase "water wagon" started from the large-headed wagons of the northwest, used in the harvesting season to supply water for the steam engine which runs the threshing machine. No one is more in need of water to drink than the horses of the wheat fields, working under the scorching sun. The workmen were prone to keep up on the wagon to quench their thirst every time the wagon came in. This was obtained from a bag of water hung on the side of the wagon to keep it cool.

Tuberculosis and Stomach. Tuberculosis rarely attacks the stomach, and the reason for this is explained by Dr. Wilhelm Roemer of Berlin in describing one case in Berlin. The patient, a woman, was suffering from the gastric juice, added by the active movements of the stomach, the germs of tuberculosis before they got a chance to take hold.

The Symbols Carry.

The eagle stood for one thing in ancient symbolism. The Greek nation for the growth of the tale was a world spanning "rapid medium." The thought of the eagle, when reaching the great bird of the world, was to signify the sun, gave it a name which meant "meditation." In early Christian art the eagle became the symbol of spiritual power, because it was able to soar directly through the highest places. The lion was the symbol of human pride and vengeance.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE MRS. PIG.

"Of all the Mrs. Pigs," said Mrs. Pink Pig, "I'm the prettiest and the nicest."

"Nonsense," said Pinky's mother, "I am."

"I am," said Mrs. Black Pig, who had come along for a talk.

"Grunt, grunt, I am," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "I know Mr. Pink Pig thinks so. He looked over all the pigs in the barnyard and then he looked at me and he said:

"I admire all pigs and I think they're all very fine, but you I admire the most of all."

"Ah," said Pinky's mother, "but I heard why he thought you were the best of all, or rather, why he admired you the most of all.

"He thought you were the biggest pig in the pen."

"That's a great compliment," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "I know of some creatures who'd rather have other compliments, but that one suits me perfectly."

"Just as well it does," said Pinky's mother, "for it's about the only one you'll ever have."

"I said I was the prettiest and the nicest of all the Mrs. Pigs," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"So did I say so of myself," said Pinky's mother.

"And that was what I said of myself," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"But I am right, squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"None of you are pretty and none of you are so wonderfully nice," said Miss Ham.

"You're not members of a beautiful family in the first place and in the second place you are even particular of how you look and creatures must be neat to be pretty."

"Oh well," said Mrs. Pink Pig, "there was a reason for us talking as we did. We talked foolishly enough because we were waiting for our dinner, and when one is waiting for dinner one cannot think about anything else but food."

"To be sure one can talk of other matters a little bit, but one mustn't talk of anything important, for it takes one's mind off the thought of food."

"And that would never do," said Pinky's mother.

"It would never do," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"We might just as well grunt and squeal about anything as long as it is so nearly meal time," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "It's not worth our while to start a talk about anything important."

"It most certainly is not worth our while to do that," said Pinky's mother.

"Most assuredly not," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"What do you consider important, besides food, in the way of talk?" asked Miss Ham.

"Back scratching," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Back scratching is right," agreed Pinky's mother.

"Grunt, grunt, back scratching is right," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"Well," said Miss Ham, "you are certainly foolish when you speak of prettiness and such talk."

"But of course you're pigs, and no one expects much more of you."

"We don't fuss about payment and we don't strike for higher wages and we don't upset things at all," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "I think we're pretty superior."

"So do I, grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"I agree, squeal, squeal," said Pinky's mother.

"Wouldn't you strike for more food if you thought you could get it?" asked Miss Ham.

"Well, perhaps we would," said Pinky's mother.

"We might, that is true," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"Yes, it is true, we must certainly might," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Then you'd better not talk about being so superior," said Miss Ham.

"Let us not talk about anything," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "For here comes our dinner."

"We will talk of nothing for awhile now," said Mrs. Black Pig.

"We will simply eat and be happy," said Pinky's mother.

"And I will join you, squeal, squeal," said Miss Ham. "I'm a sensible pig and I'll join you."

"Sensible," the others repeated, "you're greedy and that is why you are joining us in eating the meal the fattest is bringing to us."

"None of You Are Pretty."

GAS BUGGIES—You've got to have something to quarrel about

Teach a man how to live properly, give him a good home, and he will be a good citizen. From the same fundamental at him, but house him in a cheerful shack, and you still have a potential radical. MIDSUMMER GOOD THINGS.

Just at the season when we all want to play get away to lake, ocean or wood-old mother nature lavishes upon us with all these delights, the wealth of fruit from field and garden, and if frugality crowds out pleasure, at least some days will be given to putting up good things to enjoy in the winter.

For those who are fond of the choice Bar-le-duc currants, the substitute made at home is almost as good, as the real article, with the exception of the seeds. If you have plenty of leisure, the seeds may be carefully removed and you have a preserve unequalled. Put the currants in a saucepan with just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan. Bring to the boiling point, and add one-half of the sugar. Weigh the fruit and use one-half to three-fourths as much sugar as currants. Cook ten minutes, then add the rest of the sugar and cook half an hour. Pour into jars or glasses and let stand to become cold before covering with paraffin. Serve this preserve with cream cheese and lettuce. To change the flavor prepare some with spices, some with spice and vinegar, making a variety which will be used with meats, while the richest, thickest preserve is served with salads.

Gooseberries are delicious prepared in the same way; they are not difficult to seed, and a few glasses will add greatly to the winter supply of good things.

Cherry and Pineapple Marmalade.—Measure four quarts of cherries after they have been pitted, and shred one medium-sized pineapple. Weigh the fruit together and allow an equal amount of sugar. Boil together for three-quarters of an hour after it has begun boiling. Pour into glasses and let stand in the sun for one day, carefully covered with cheesecloth. An old coffee or teapot makes a fine receptacle for holding the paraffin and to use in pouring.

Helpful Rubber Bands.

Small elastic rubbers like those used around rolls of paper in offices are more convenient for placing around rolls of patches or cloth left over from making a garment than using pins or strings for tying around them and presents a neater appearance in storing away. Catalogs, magazines, bunches of papers may be rolled with a rubber band and stored in smaller space.

The Way of the Politician.

Stories of Great Scouts

JEDEDIAH STRONG SMITH, THE AMERICAN ULYSSES

This is a story of a modern Ulysses, a frontier hero of many wanderings, who died without receiving the fame which was his due, a man whose service to America has been but lately appreciated by his countrymen. Jedediah Strong Smith was his name, and his contribution to history was the first accurate mapping of the great West.

Smith was born in New York in 1799. As a boy, he played with the young Seneca Indians of Chief Cornplanter's tribe, and learned their lore. He became an expert with the bow and arrow, which he afterward carried on all of his expeditions. Once he brought down a hawk flying about 75 yards above him, and he could drive a shaft to the heart of a buffalo as skillfully as any Indian hunter.

In years of wandering Smith crossed the western country on the south from the Colorado river to the Pacific, he crossed it midway from the Rockies to the Pacific, and he traversed it on the north from California to the Rockies. He visited all the important streams from Arizona to the Yellowstone country, and he made accurate notes of all he saw. This information was used in correcting the unreliable maps of the day and proved of incalculable value to later explorers.

Smith's death was heroic. In 1831 he was guiding a wagon train over the Santa Fe trail. The train had taken a short cut around the head of the Cimarron river and soon was lost in a desert country. Water must be found at once. Smith set out in search of a stream, and finally reached one. While drinking, he was surrounded by a band of Comanches, who determined to have the white man's gun.

The Indians signaled peace, and after talking in the sign language for a while, they succeeded in frightening Smith's horse. As it turned, they shot at the scout with arrows, wounding him in the arm. Smith wheeled about, shot the chief dead with his rifle and killed two more savages with his pistols. Then grasping his ax, the scout dashed into their midst. They cut him down with their lances, but when they approached to scalp him, Smith rose up again and stabbed three of them with his knife. Then he dropped dead. The Indians afterward admitted that he had killed 13 of their party before he died.

Glenwood

Don't Be Extravagant

By being too economical—think of the cost of doing without. The older the stove the more it wastes, not only in food and patience but in fuel. Saving a few pounds of coal each day means hundreds of pounds in a year. A Modern Glenwood gives wonderful results with the smallest amount of fuel. Get one and start saving now.

This Glenwood is shown in the wonderful pearl grey porcelain enamel finish—so neat and attractive. By simply passing a damp cloth over the surface you are able to clean your range instantly. No more soiled hands, no more dust and grime. It banishes the old time task of blacking the range. Picture the splendid appearance it would make in your kitchen.

FIEND MURDERS MICH. FAMILY

Heads Crushed in With Nail-Studded Club—Daughter, Only Survivor, Badly Hurt And Unable To Tell Of Attack.

By Telegram to The Freeman: Dowagiac, Mich., Sept. 21.—A blood-stained club, matted with hair and from which bent nails protruded, and a single bloody finger print, constitute the clues upon which authorities are working today in an effort to solve the mysterious murder of William Monroe, 45, his wife, Mary, 42, and their daughter, Neva, 17. The bodies of the three were found at their home on the outskirts of the city yesterday. Twelve year old Ardith Monroe, also badly beaten about the head and in a partial stupor, was alive when the bodies of other members of the family were found.

Ardith Monroe regained consciousness this morning but could give no clue as to how the slayings had been accomplished. Police made every possible effort to obtain a statement from her but it was evident that the attack occurred in the dark and that the child was struck down before she knew what was occurring. The girl is still in a critical condition.

It is believed that the three members of the Monroe family were murdered Saturday night and that the girl, Ardith, lay for two days in the same bed with her sister's body and in the same room with her dead parents. Ardith's face was crushed by a blow from the slayer's club.

The heads of all three victims were beaten almost beyond recognition. Early today Dr. George F. Inch, assistant superintendent of state hospital for the insane at Kalamazoo, said that two inmates, Louis Bergman of Coloma, Mich., and James Morrow, had escaped from the asylum about a week ago. Dr. Inch said, however, that he did not believe either of them would commit murder.

Henry Lehrman, motion picture director and fiancé of Virginia Rappe, the film actress, who died after a "party" in "Fatty" Arbuckle's suite in a San Francisco hotel, Lehrman has announced that he will spend his last cent to see that Arbuckle is punished for his alleged crime.

Figs Flourish in Poorest Soil. Consul Homer M. Byington of Naples writes that the production of figs for local consumption and for exportation is an important industry in southern Italy. "Fresh figs are a staple article of food, especially for the poorer classes, during the season, and when dried in the sun may be kept for considerable periods of time. Of peculiar economic value is the fact that they may be grown in soil too poor for other crops. The trees are planted irregularly and frequently on steep hillsides along small terraces.

In certain provinces it is the custom for landowners to enter into an agreement with the farmer whereby the latter plants fig trees in the inferior or waste portion of land, taking the entire crop of a stated number of years and at the end of the contract returning the land in producing condition.

Little Susy at Church.—Little Susy was taken to church by her mother for the first time. During the long sermon the child grew more and more fidgety, and kept wriggling about. Finally she became very greatly interested in a small tear in her dress and, after looking at this absently for a little while, she jumped to her feet on the seat, and to the great mortification of her mother, cried out: "Has anybody in this crowd got a pin?"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Words Have Changed Meaning.—The word "charity" is one which has come to be an awful cropper. It is used almost exclusively nowadays to mean dependence upon doles and gifts, while the word "impertinent" has gone through a remarkable change. It now means "sassy." Originally it meant a remark that was not pertinent to the subject under discussion, and gradually got to mean a remark to be resented.

Scenes of San Antonio Flood

Over one hundred lives were lost and property damages estimated to be over a million were wrought in the recent flood that swept San Antonio. The photograph at the top shows the beautiful canal that winds its way through the heart of the city between grassy slopes. The canal waters wrecked one of the bridges in the downtown section, going up wreckage. On the left the strength of the flood waters is shown by the scale which was washed along with the other wreckage. The photo on the right shows the scene where a boat was shot and killed by a soldier while searching victims of the flood.

M. E. ASSOCIATION HAS FIELD DAY

Addresses and Sports and Business Session of Ministers and Laymen at Cairo—Adopt Plan of Helping Unemployed in New York.

At the first annual meeting and field day of the Kingston District Rural Association held on the Greene county fair grounds at Cairo, N. Y., September 13, and attended by four or five hundred ministers and laymen of the Methodist Churches of Kingston district, the Rev. George W. Grinton, D. D., superintendent, offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously voted:

"Whereas, Mr. Baker, secretary of the labor bureau of the Bowery Mission of New York city, has called attention to the large number of unemployed who will through the bread lines this winter, stating that $25,000 will be necessary to meet this need, and

"Whereas, there are scores of farms that have been abandoned for lack of help throughout the territory of the Kingston district, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the secretary of the Kingston District Rural Association forward to Mr. Baker a directory of the pastors of this district, and invite him to cooperate with them in securing employment for these needy men.

Aside from thrilling addresses by the Rev. W. G. Shellabear, returned missionary from Malaysia, the Rev. John R. Henry, D. D., of the Church of All Nations in New York, on the problems of town and city work, and Dr. E. A. Dent, New York area secretary for the centenary, the marked feature of the program was the lecture by Prof. M. A. Dawber of Boston School of Theology, one of the foremost leaders in the church and country life movement. Prof. Dawber assured his hearers, most of them from rural districts, that the rural department of the Methodist board of home missions knows the country church field and job. He showed the importance of the work of the country church, and gave the evidences of great progress in the work.

The field sports were in charge of the Rev. J. E. Parker, pastor at Cairo. In the tug of war the laymen were the winners over the clergymen in spite of the fact that the Rev. E. N. Hubbard, one of the "strongest men" of the conference was leader of the ministers' team. The Rev. William Peckham of Rount Top, in the half mile race, took the prize as the fastest runner of the day.

J. P. Lambert, president of the Rural Association, conducted the business session of the field day. The large attendance and keen interest in the gathering are matters for which the Rural Association and Dr. G. W. Grinton are to be heartily congratulated.

YANKS AND GIANTS LEAD LEAGUES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 21.—The New York Yankees assumed the leadership in the American League race today by downing the Tigers while Cleveland dropped a game to the Red Sox but the race is just as tight and uncertain as ever.

In the National League the Pirates were idle but gained half a game on New York because McGraw's team lost to the Cubs in ten innings. The Giants are now three full games in front standing in the National League.

The Yankees and the Indians each have ten games to play. Cleveland has two more with Boston, four with the Yankees and four with the White Sox in Chicago. The Yanks have one more with Detroit, four with Cleveland, three with Philadelphia, one with Boston and one postponed game at Washington that can be played if necessary.

In the National League the Giants have eight more games to dispose of, if they include postponed games, while the Pirates are twelve games removed from the 154 mark. Should the Giants win four out of eight possible games Pittsburgh would have to take ten out of twelve to win the pennant.

Al Semnacher, manager of Miss Virginia Rappe, was one of the witnesses at the investigation. He turned over to the police certain mutilated garments worn by Miss Rappe at the time of the alleged attack.

NEW VERSION OF "OLD GLORY"

Englishman Offers Opinion That Stars and Stripes Are Copy of East India Company's Flag.

A new theory about the origin of the American flag is told by the writer of the By the Way column in the London Daily Express. It is sent by a correspondent evidently versed in such matters, who expresses the opinion that the attribution of "Old Glory" to the arms of the Washington family is exploded.

"It is much more probable," he writes, "that the flag of the old East India company formed the pattern. This flag seems to have been used as the official flag of the 13 original states from January, 1776, to June, 1777, when a blue canton charged with 13 stars was substituted for the canton bearing the English 'Union.' The flag then became, in substance, that of today, though stars have been added as other states adhered to the federation." The correspondent quotes authorities.

"Truth must prevail, whatever it is, but," says the columnist, "I like the story told by Newman in his addresses to the Bruisers of Oratory. There was once an old priest, he tells us, who for years began a certain part of the service with the words: 'Quod ore mumpsimus.' One day a more learned person heard him and afterward told him that the third word should be 'sumpsimus.' The old priest admitted that it might be so, but he added, 'I will not change my old mumpsimus for your new sumpsimus.' I like the old mumpsimus story associating 'Old Glory' with Sulgrave manor."

IN POLICE COURT.

Trying To Beat Way Home—Other Cases Heard.

Forrest R. McCormack of Providence, R. I., 26 years old, found work dull in his home town and went west, and in Cleveland, Ohio, the only job he found open was that of selling newspapers, at which he earned about $1.75 a day. There is an ordinance in that city that prohibits newsboys from selling their wares after certain hours, but Forrest not knowing of the ordinance was "pinched" for violating his papers, but the judge discharged him.

Deciding that he could not support his wife and child, who were back at home, McCormack decided to beat it home, and Tuesday afternoon he was arrested by Detective Goodell of the West Shore railroad on a charge of train riding. This morning in police court Judge Schrick allowed the withdrawal of the complaint.

Then John himself was arraigned before the court on a charge of communicating with a number of other men at the West Shore station and creating a disturbance. John was arrested Tuesday night by Officer Four. John had only appeared in court Tuesday morning when he was fined $5, and Judge Schrick warned him to be more careful in the future and save him another chance today.

LIFE'S LITTLE THRILLS

A man was riding home one dark night over a strange road on a bicycle. He came to a cross road and not knowing which way to turn he dismounted from his bicycle and climbed on a sign post which he saw there. When he got to the top, after much labor, he with difficulty struck a match and read, Drink Grape Juice. THE MORAL.

Why not carry an Eveready Battery with you and avoid all this trouble. We can supply you with any size or type and also can make your old one work again.

Stone Monuments Fashionable.

Archaeologists claim that pyramids were the first monuments, but the example set by Queen Artemisia took hold of popular fancy to such an extent that a few years after she had paid the famous marble tribute to her dead husband and queen, the custom of erecting monuments became so universal throughout Greece and Rome that from that day on such a structure was erected to the memory of practically every great man.

World's Stormiest Place.

The North sea is famous for its storms. Cape Hatteras is a home of the storm king—though perhaps surprised, when comparison of the elements is concerned by Cape Horn. But the stormiest place in all the world is Cape Horn of Wales, which is the westernmost point of Alaska. It is located by a considerable mountain 2,236 feet high, and there winds blow there perpetually. Storms from the Arctic swirl in all the year round.
